Irregular Verbs

Englische Unregelmäßige Verben

Shows the "Past" and "Perfect" (past participle) forms, as well as the German translations of 160 English verbs. Also shows the differences between British and American past forms, some being irregular in both (get, spit) and others in either American or British (spill, burn, dive). Explains the nuances of certain "phrasal verbs", as well as the differences between the past forms of verbs with two different meanings (hang-hung-hung & hang-hanged-hanged). Describes the meaning behind "Simple Past" and "Present Perfect" using signal words, a time line and example sentences. Also comes with French, Spanish and Dutch translations, as well as in a CD-size monolingual format (see back page).

Other Verbwheels

English Irregular Verbs ISBN 3-936361-35-5

Deutsche Unregelmäßige Verben ISBN 3-936361-36-3

This wheel is the monolingual CD-size version (d=12cm) of the German Irregular Verbs on page 2. Shows the Präteritum and Perfekt forms of 120 German verbs and whether each verb takes sein or haben in the Perfekt tense, including those verbs which can take both. Also shows the past forms of five important modal verbs.

Getrennt durch eine gemeinsame Sprache - Amerikanisch-Britisch ISBN 3-936361-41-X

Shows 64 differences between American and British English, organised alphabetically according to their German translation. For example, the British say "trousers" for "Hose", while Americans say "pants". The British put a suitcase in the "boot" of the car (Kofferraum), and Americans put it in the "trunk".

False Friends English-German Falsche Freunde Englisch-Deutsch ISBN 3-936361-06-1

A larger version (d=21cm) of the English-German False Friends including 160 pairs of false friends and their respective translations, rather than the 64 pairs on the smaller version on page 3.
